FBI RAIDED MANAFORT'S HOME IN RUSSIA PROBE

A July FBI raid on the Virginia home of President Donald Trump's former campaign manager, confirmed on Wednesday, showed that a federal investigation of possible ties between Trump's campaign and Russian meddling in the 2016 U.S. election was intensifying. Federal Bureau of Investigation agents executed a search warrant at one of Paul Manafort's homes, spokesman Jason Maloni said. A source familiar with the work of Robert Mueller, the special counsel named by the Justice Department in May to investigate the Russia matter, said the raid was part of the first stage of his probe, focused on seeking evidence of financial crimes.

MATTIS ISSUES STARK WARNING TO N. KOREA

Defense Secretary Jim Mattis issued a stark warning to North Korea, telling Pyongyang that it should stop any actions that would lead to the "end of its regime and the destruction of its people." Mattis' words, some of the strongest he has issued on North Korea, followed incendiary comments from President Donald Trump who said on Tuesday that threats to the United States from Pyongyang would be met with "fire and fury." Trump's unexpected remarks prompted North Korea to respond by saying it was considering plans for a missile strike on the U.S. Pacific territory of Guam. Mattis said in a statement that the United States and its allies would win any arms race or conflict with North Korea.

AIRLINE APOLOGIZES FOR DEATH OF DOG

4 United Airlines apologized to the owners of dog who died in an aircraft cargo hold during a flight from Houston to San Francisco, the latest death of an animal under the airline's care. ABC News reported that the Rasmussen family's 5-year-old King Charles Spaniel Lulu was aboard the United plane on Sunday when it was delayed on the tarmac for two hours before taking off. The family said the dog died in the cargo hold and had been cleared to fly by a veterinarian days before the flight, ABC said. "We are so sorry to learn of Lulu's passing and have reached out to our customer to offer our condolences and assistance," United said in a statement. "We are conducting a thorough review of this incident." U.S. Department of Transportation data show that United had nine of the 26 deaths of animals reported last year.

AMAZON SUED BY TRANSGENDER WOMAN

5 A transgender woman and her husband sued Amazon.com Inc. on Wednesday, accusing the company of subjecting them to severe harassment and physical threats when they both worked at the retailer's warehouse in Kentucky. A group representing the couple said their case was striking given the Seattle-based company's vocal support of LGBT rights. The lawsuit filed in federal court in Kentucky said Allegra Schawe-Lane was subjected to taunts such as "she-male" and "crossdresser" from coworkers. She and her husband Dane Lane also received crass comments about their sex life, it said. The couple lodged a series of complaints with supervisors during the year they worked at the Hebron, Kentucky, warehouse, but the company took no action, the lawsuit said.

A Black Lives Matter founder on its evolution, future – and Trump

"Black Lives Matter was a moment and a hashtag and now a global movement that I helped start, but it isn't the beginning of the end for my work," said Patrisse Cullors.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork
nikki.mascali@metro.us

In four years, Black Lives Matter went from a hashtag about social injustice to a full-fledged global civil rights movement.

Metro spoke with Patrisse Cullors, who co-founded Black Lives Matter with Alicia Garza and Opal Tometi in 2013, about its evolution, fighting racism in the age of Trump, her upcoming memoir and what saying "all lives matter" really means.

What is the biggest misconception you find people have about Black Lives Matter?
That we just started a hashtag. That it isn't a sophisticated set of ideas that would lead to a larger strategy to build out, a powerful network. That Black Lives Matter is every black organization — we are one of many black-led organizations across the country. That Black Lives Matter only cares about black people in America.

How do you feel when someone counters "black lives matter" with "all lives matter"?
You definitely don't care about black folks if you say "all lives matter." We all know that all lives matter, that's a very obvious take, but what people are missing when they refuse to say "black lives matter" is that black folks have the shortest end of the stick — they have historically, and they do currently. Until we address and end black racism, we are not going to see the freedom of all human beings.

Do you think America will ever be racism-free?
I do — if we remember that the popular vote did not get Trump in office. That's a great sign.

Will it be in my generation or my child's? I don't think so, but many people didn't think we'd see a black president, and we did.

We are living in a country that will elect one of the most progressive people in the history of America, and then elect one of the most regressive racists, so anything is possible [laughs]. Only in America.

Black Lives Matter co-founder Patrisse Cullors discusses the movement's evolution, future, its response to President Trump and more. PROVIDED

"You definitely don't care about black folks if you say 'all lives matter.'"

Patrisse Cullor

What, to you, is the most important BLM focus?
They're all of equal importance, but because so much of the focus of the media is on the Trump administration, we're not seeing much of the conversation around the killing of black people by law enforcement. I think that's deeply unfortunate because we haven't seen law enforcement be accountable.

You'll publish a joint memoir with Asha Bandele in January. What can you tell me about "When They Call You a Terrorist: A Black Lives Matter Memoir"?
This is the story of what it looks like to grow up in the '80s and '90s from a young black girl's perspective in Los Angeles.

You're going to hear about my coming-out story and what it meant and what it means to be a person who had to live a lot of my life visiting people inside jails and prisons and how all of that really brings me to helping create the start of Black Lives Matter.

Were there passages that were difficult to write?
I think the passage and the chapter that was most difficult for me to write was on my brother, Monte, who is my hero and who has also been really demoralized by the police state and spent a lot of time in prison and suffers from schizoaffective disorder. I wrote about his imprisonment and the impact it had on me and the work I did and the work my community did to help get him out of prison and keep him from getting a life sentence.

Like so many at that age, you left home at 16 because of your sexuality. What kept you going?
My friends, my community, all the other queer kids that I was with. For young, queer kids and trans kids who are often isolated in their towns, communities and their own homes, this is a book to remind folks that the power is in our community and building a community who really can and will take care of us.

What is the future of Black Lives Matter?
I see a continuation of what we've been doing the past four years and a continued evolution. I think that's what makes our movement really powerful. We're willing to evolve, so I think continued evolution, continued work and a very dedicated presence around fighting and winning against the current administration of the right and conservative party.

Building coalitions to take on Trump

What we've seen in the last few months with this administration that's dubbed "the law and order administration," they privilege police and law enforcement over the lives of the people most vulnerable, which are black folks and other marginalized groups. Where he encouraged law enforcement to brutalize individuals that they take, I think they have made it clear that Black Lives Matter isn't a friend to this administration, and they see it as a foe.

One thing is the deep desire to build coalitions with other groups of marginalized people. We were the first ones to show up when the Muslim ban happened to airports in New York and L.A. to stand up for the Muslim community. There's support for the Affordable Care Act, and we've been on the front lines fighting for Planned Parenthood and reproductive rights and maternal justice. PATRISSE CULLORS

Canada sets up camps at NY border as asylum seekers arrive

Canada has deployed soldiers to erect tents near the U.S. border to temporarily house hundreds of asylum seekers crossing from New York, officials said on Wednesday. An influx of mostly Haitians prompted by fear of deportation by the U.S. government.

Heated tents will accommodate up to 500 people as Canadian border officials process mainly Haitians walking into Canada from the United States. Quebec has opened its Olympic Stadium, a former hospital and a school among other places to house people.

Nearly 100 soldiers will be in Saint-Bernard-de-Lacolle, across the border from Champlain, New York, to set up the tents and add to temporary facilities already organized by the Royal Canadian Mounted Police (RCMP) and Canadian Border Services Agency.

The Canadian Armed Forces were aware of the difficult situation that requires significant resources, said Daniel Le Bouthillier, a spokesman at the Department of National Defense.

The military would have no role in security matters, Le Bouthillier said in emailed statement. "When the site is completed, the military will return to their home base."

Hundreds of Haitians have crossed into Quebec in recent weeks, spurred partly by false accounts of asylum seekers being able to immediately obtain residency after entering Canada.

"There is an enormous amount of fake information circulating saying that it is easy to come to Canada," said Marjorie Villefranche, general manager of Maison d'Haiti, a Montreal community center that assists Haitian immigrants. "They are hearing that Canada doesn't deport people."

In the first half of 2017, more than 4,300 asylum seekers walked across the U.S. border into Canada. Even before the flow of Haitian asylum seekers Canada was on track to have the most refugee claims in almost a decade. REUTERS

City unveils first 'Shared Street' in Flatiron District

The one-block stretch on Broadway includes a lower speed limit and new crosswalks, bike lanes and intersection.

NIKKI M. MASCALI
@MetroNewYork
nikki.mascali@metro.us

In its continued effort to encourage motorists, cyclists and pedestrians to be more mindful of each other's presence, the city officially opened its first permanent "Shared Street" on Wednesday.

The Shared Street is located on Broadway between 24th and 25th streets in the Flatiron District. This one-block stretch was chosen after traffic data showed that pedestrians in the area outnumbered vehicles 18:1 during peak evening times.

"With so few cars moving so slowly, pedestrians and cyclists can now safely take up all the space they need," NYC Department of Transportation Commissioner Polly Trottenberg said.

The project was inspired by the success of similar initiatives in Seattle, London, Pittsburgh and Barcelona — and a one-day pilot in Lower Manhattan last August.

Flatiron's Shared Street area includes a redesigned intersection, new signs, a relocated Citi Bike station, a new 5 mph vehicular speed limit and new crosswalks and designated bike lanes. It also redirected the traffic flow from southbound to northbound and changed driving to one lane.

The Flatiron Shared Street is a joint initiative of the DOT, Flatiron/23rd Street Partnership Business Improvement District, Madison Square Park Conservancy and Community Board Five.

Shared Streets is a permanent extension of the city's car-free events, such as Summer Streets and Weekend Walks.

More permanent Shared Streets such as the Flatiron stretch are on the horizon, with streets in Chinatown currently being assessed on Friday afternoons, said Manhattan Borough Commissioner Luis Sanchez.

North Korean leader Kim Jong Un has threatened the U.S. territory of Guam with a missile strike. GETTY IMAGES

North Korea calls Trump's warning a 'load of nonsense'

On Wednesday, Trump followed up his "fire and fury" warning with a boast about U.S. nuclear capabilities.

North Korea is working on plans for a missile strike near the U.S. Pacific territory of Guam, calling President Donald Trump's warning of "fire and fury" a "load of nonsense" and that only "absolute force can work on him."

Pyongyang's state-run KCNA news agency issued an update on its strike plans after Trump's incendiary comments on Tuesday that threats to the United States from Pyongyang would be met with "fire and fury."

Trump's unexpected remarks prompted North Korea to say it was considering plans to fire four intermediate-range missiles to land 18 to 25 miles from Guam, home to about 163,000 people and a U.S. military base that includes a submarine squadron, an air base and a Coast Guard group.

The army will complete its plans in mid-August, ready for North Korean leader Kim Jong Un's order, KCNA said on Wednesday, citing General Kim Rak Gyom, commander of the Strategic Force of the Korean People's Army.

The news agency said Trump "let out a load of nonsense about 'fire and fury,'" adding "sound dialogue is not possible with such a guy bereft of reason and only absolute force can work on him."

On global markets, the strong rhetoric and sharp increase in tensions drove investors out of stocks and other risky assets on Wednesday and into textbook safe havens like gold and Treasuries.

U.S. Defense Secretary Jim Mattis issued a stark warning earlier on Wednesday, telling Pyongyang the United States and its allies would win any arms race or conflict.

"The DPRK should cease any consideration of actions that would lead to the end of its regime and the destruction of its people," Mattis said in a statement, using the acronym for North Korea's official name, the Democratic People's Republic of Korea.

The United States and South Korea remain technically still at war with North Korea after the 1950-53 Korean conflict ended with a truce, not a peace treaty. North Korea regularly threatens to destroy the United States.

Tension in the region has risen since North Korea carried out two nuclear bomb tests last year and two intercontinental ballistic missile tests in July. Trump has said he will not allow Pyongyang to develop a nuclear weapon capable of hitting the United States.

"My first order as president was to renovate and modernize our nuclear arsenal. It is now far stronger and more powerful than ever before," Trump tweeted. "Hopefully we will never have to use this power, but there will never be a time that we are not the most powerful nation in the world!"

Trump's "fire and fury" remarks prompted warnings from U.S. officials and analysts not to engage in rhetorical games with Pyongyang.

U.S. Secretary of State Rex Tillerson, who was in Guam on a previously scheduled visit, played down the rhetoric, saying he did not believe there was an imminent threat from North Korea and "Americans should sleep well at night."

Trump's "fire and fury" warning was meant to send a "strong message to North Korea in language that [North Korean leader] Kim Jong Un would understand, because he doesn't seem to understand diplomatic language," Tillerson said. REUTERS

Barack Obama trolled Will Smith about his ears, and now we love him even more

The ex-president wants Big Willie to play him in a biopic.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

Barack Obama has literally earmarked Will Smith to play him in a future biopic, telling the Oscar-nominated actor that his are the perfect size to do him justice on the big-screen.

Smith made this admission to James Corden during the premiere episode of "Carpool Karaoke: The Series," revealing that he has already been approached by filmmakers to portray the 44th president of the United States. Will Smith's interest was clearly piqued by this interest, too, because he has since discussed the potential role with Barack Obama.

Never one to miss an opportunity, Obama responded with a pitch-perfect zinger that was both self-deprecating and managed to cut Smith down to size. Obama did give Smith his seal of approval. However, the actor then admitted that the only reason Obama did so was because "he felt confident that I had the ears for the role."

It is unlikely that Obama's brutal insult about Smith's ears will put the "Fresh Prince of Bel-Air" star off portraying the former commander in chief. That's because, following Leonardo DiCaprio's Oscar for best actor for his role in "The Revenant," Smith is now arguably the most famous thespian to have never picked up the coveted gong.

That's not for the want of trying. Smith has actually been nominated for a best actor Academy Award on two separate occasions, thanks to his performances as Muhammed Ali in 2001's "Ali" and stockbroker Chris Gardner in 2006's "The Pursuit of Happyness." Portraying Barack Obama would almost certainly pique the interest of the Academy, too, especially since he already has the politician onboard.

Before then, though, Smith would first have to trump Devon Terrell's portrayal of Obama in "Barry" and Parker Sawyer's "Southside with You," both of which drew acclaim, but failed to claim recognition come awards season.

Obama said Will Smith would be a good contender for playing the former president. GETTY IMAGES

CUBA

US says two Cuban diplomats expelled after 'incidents' in Havana

The United States said it had expelled two Washington-based Cuban diplomats in May after unspecified "incidents" caused physical symptoms in Americans serving at the U.S. Embassy in Havana that an unnamed official said included hearing loss.

U.S. State Department spokeswoman Heather Nauert told reporters on Wednesday the exact nature of the incidents was unclear, but the Americans serving in Cuba returned to the United States for non life-threatening "medical reasons."

The United States first learned of the issues at the embassy in late 2016, she said.

"We don't have any definitive answers about the source or the cause of what we consider to be incidents," Nauert said. "It's caused a variety of physical symptoms in these American citizens. ... We take those incidents very seriously, and there is an investigation currently under way."

As a result, the U.S. on May 23 asked two Cuban officials in Washington to leave the country and they have done so, Nauert said.

"What this requires is providing medical examinations to these people," Nauert said. "Initially, when they'd started reporting what I will just call symptoms, it took time to figure out what it was, and this is still ongoing. So we're monitoring it."

A U.S. government official said several colleagues at the U.S. embassy in Havana were evacuated back to the United States for hearing problems and other symptoms over the past six months. Some subsequently got hearing aids, said the official, who spoke on condition of anonymity. REUTERS

Why Aren't Doctors Telling About These Two Often

Two Advanced Medical Treatments Every Knee Arthritis Sufferer

New York City, New York

NY Pain MD* is a medical group with locations in Midtown NYC and Downtown NYC that has treated thousands of knee arthritis and joint pain patients.

Here is what every knee arthritis sufferer should know about the best treatments and options available today. Including when and why you should consider each of these 2 treatment approaches to get maximum results.

If you suffer with knee or other join arthritis pain, you have probably already tried many treatments ... especially countless pain medications. Experienced doctors understand that, even though pain medications such as anti-inflammatory pain pills are part of the recommended early treatment plan for knee arthritis pain... they are rarely the answer over the longer term.

In most cases they have minimal results (if any) and have a laundry list of potential side effects. Some being serious and even life threatening.

Are There Any Better Options?

Thankfully, advancements in science and technology come extremely fast. And now there are two very good options for knee arthritis to help relieve the pain.

There are two options that many knee arthritis sufferers have never heard of.

Before we get into the two treatments, please understand this...

NY Pain MD is a well established medical clinic that has treated thousands of knee arthritis sufferers and joint and back pain sufferers. Patients travel from all over the area and even several states away from NYC to be treated at one of their clinics because they want the best medical treatments available. What you are about to discover are two REAL medical treatments. Not miracle cures you see on infomercials or non -medicial treatments promoted on the internet.

Know this fact: There is no cure for arthritis. But there are these two treatments that have already helped thousands of knee arthritis sufferers - possibly just like you.

The first treatment is more common than the second. Even if you have heard of this treatment - or even tried it without good results - please read this. You will find out why it may not have worked for you and how you may be able to get much better results.

#1 Viscosupplementation

Viscosupplementation has gained quite a bit of popularity in recent years and it has gotten mixed results for a couple of reasons.

But before we get into that,here's what you need to know about viscosupplementation.

When you have arthritis, you suffer a decrease in the lubrication fluids in your knee.

In other words, your knee joints basically "dries up."

The lubricating fluid that decreases is called "synovial fluid." Pharmaceutical companies (with the help of scientists) can now make natural synovial fluid gel-like compounds that, during viscosupplementation, treatments... doctors can precisely introduce directly into the knee and other joints.

This helps replace the lubricating fluid to the knee joint - allowing it to move more freely and smoothly and often decreasing or even eliminating the pain.

What Results Can Be Expected?

Like all medical treatments, the results vary and can not be predicted. But many knee arthritis sufferers get dramatic results. It is not uncommon for patients to either postpone knee replacement surgery for years... or even permanently cancel it.

But There Is A BIG Problem

The key is the treatment must be EXTREMELY PRECISE. If the injection is slightly off, the medication will not get into the knee joint and the treatment will not work.

That's why the experts at NY Pain MD use Precision Arthritis Targeting Technology or P.A.T.T. so they can actually see the medicine going directly into the knee joint during the treatment.

Research shows that doctors performing joint injections without imaging technology can miss the joint as much as 30% of the time.

If you have tried viscosupplementation without this imaging technology and without good results - this may very well be why.

That's why NY Pain MD takes it even one step further. They do not just use one-step process of advanced imaging during treatment - they use two in their "double confirmation" process. This is to ensure patients get the best possible results.

Another Important Factor

Viscosupplementation medications also come in several different "brands" or formulas. Like all medications, some people respond better to one than another. So, the experts at NY Pain MD use several and great effort is taken to figure out what is the best one for YOU.

One last thing: The experts at NY Pain MD have found that earlier you start Viscosupplementation the better.

This is most likely because the longer you wait - the more joint destuction takes place.

That's why NY Pain MD is now seeing so many patients as young as 35 to 40.

Summary: If you have arthritis pain and have not tried Viscosupplementation you should look into it as soon as possible.

If you have tried it without good results. you may still be able to get great results with the proper targeted imaging and specific medication.

What Should You Do If Viscosupplementation Fails?

When conservative treatment, including viscosupplementation fails ... most knee arthritis sufferers believe their only option is total knee replacement surgery.

This is not true...and here is why

There is another treatment for serious knee arthritis pain most people (and even doctors) do not know about.

#2: Radiofrequency Treatment

This treatment is technically called, "Radiofrequency Neurotomy." Or RF for short.

RF is a procedure that is based the theory that blocking the nerve supply to the painful area may alleviate pain and restore function.

ADVERTISEMENT

Knee Arthritis Suffers Successful Treatments?

Needs To Know - Before Or After Knee Replacement Surgery

Several branches of nerves that surround the knee are know as "genicular nerves."

Radiofrequency waves are delivered to the genicular nerves under advanced imaging to "block" the nerve from transmitting pain signals.

There are two distinct parts to this treatment. First, a test, diagnostic "G Block" proce-dure is done to determine if the procedure is going to decrease pain and improve function.

If this first "test" procedure is successful, then one two week later, Radio Frequen-cy waves are applied for long term relief.

Is It Safe?

Research has shown this to provide relief for patients and the to procedure to be safe and effective.

One study published Novem-ber 4, 2010 in the journal Pain found that RF treated subjects on average "achieved at least 50% knee pain relief at 1,4 and 12 weeks, respective-ly. No patient reported a post procedure adverse event during the follow-up period. Some studies indicate some patients may get years of relief in some cases. " RF neu rotomy (radio frequency treatment) of genicular nerves leads to sig ificant pain reduction and functional improvement in a subset of elderly chronic knee osteoarthritis pain, and thus may be an effective treatment in such cases."

It should also be mentioned that, like all procedures, results will vary patient to patient.

Who Should Try This Treatment?

RF should be considered after other treatments, such as anti-inflammatory pain medication and viscosupple-mentation do not offer good enough results.

RF can be utilized before resorting to total knee replacement. RF allows many patients to avoid knee replacement surgery.

RF has also been found effective AFTER knee replacement surgery when the patient still feels pain.

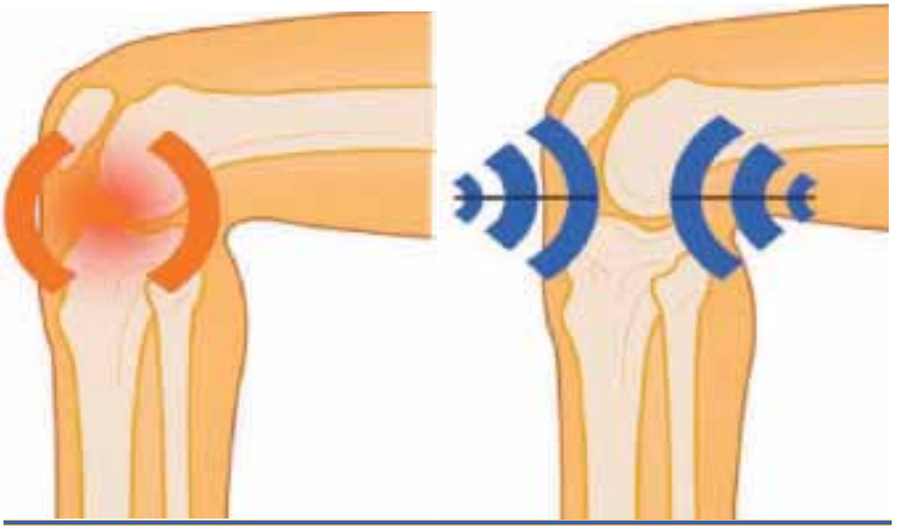
The pain after a failed knee replacement surgery can be de-bilitating and this procedure can be the only thing that helps and provided relief.

What To Do Next If You Are In Pain

Here is the "X" factor many do not consider that might be the difference between you getting the best possible treat-ment or not.

Many experts suggest choos-ing a medical clinic that offers all these treatments and has the proper, most ad-vanced technology all under one roof.

Advanced Treatment Uses Medical Radio Frequency Waves To Relieve Pain



Science rescues knee arthritis sufferers?: Radio Frequency Waves are used to block the nerve supply to the painful area and may alleviate pain and restore function to many. Many patients still in pain after a knee replacement may respond very well to these treatments allowing the possibility of avoiding additional surgery.

This way, the doctors work-ing on your case can give you a proper examination and advise the best possible treatment plan for your indi-vidual case.

Several experts work as a team to offer you the best treatment options at the appropriate time to maxi-mize results. It is also very convenient to have all your doctors and treatments in one place. Traveling to dif-ferent offices can be time consuming and even more expensive.

NY Pain MD believes this "X" factor is one of the reasons so many knee arthritis sufferes travel from all over to be treated at their advanced medicial clinics.

NY Pain MD offers a limited number of complimentary knee arthritis treatment screen-ings every month. These screenings are a way for knee arthritis sufferers to get some of their ques-tions answered and see if they are a candidate for one of the cutting-edge treatments offered at NY Pain MD

If you would like a compli-mentary screening, just call 855-456-PAIN [7246] and tell the scheduling coordi-nator "I would like a complimentary knee arthritis screening." The screenings fill up fast every month. If you do not call in time to get one this month, the schedul-ing coordiantators will get you appointed for next month

This screening is no cost and no obligation. Many of the treatments offered are covered by many insurance plans and Medicare

God is OK with nuking North Korea, Trump evangelical adviser says

The Bible says it's so.

ERIN TIERNAN
@ErinTiernan
erin.tiernan@metro.us

President Donald Trump has promised to meet North Korea's threats against the United States with "fire and fury" and one of the president's evangelical advisers said God has given Trump "full power" to attack the rogue Asian nation.

Robert Jeffress, head of the First Baptist Dallas megachurch and a pastor who sits on Trump's evangelical advisory board, told The Christian Broadcasting Network Tuesday that "God has given Trump authority to take out Kim Jong-Un."

Jeffress said it's all spelled out in the Bible.

"When it comes to how we should deal with evil doers, the Bible, in the book of Romans, is very clear: God has endowed rulers full power to use whatever means necessary — including war — to stop evil," he said in statement.

Jeffress also took his message to Twitter, "When @POTUS draws a red line, he will not erase, move, or back away from it. Thank God for [the president] who is serious [about] protecting our country."

Jeffress statements come as tensions between the U.S. and North Korea reach a boiling point. New information about North Korea's advancements in its nuclear program and news that Pyongyang is considering an attack on a U.S. military base in Guam led to President Trump's comments that continued threats from North Korea would be met with "fire and fury like the world has never seen."

Earlier this week Republican Sen. Lindsey Graham said Trump would not hesitate to go to war with North Korea if threats continue.

Jeffress told The Washington Post attacks on North Korea are sanctioned by the Romans 13 in the Bible, a section that says governing authorities are "established by God" and are "agents of wrath to bring punishment on the wrongdoer."

Beyond North Korea, here's the role of Christianity in the Trump White House

Biblical and Christian teachings have taken a front seat in the White House's management style since Trump won the presidency.

The Trump cabinet attends weekly Bible study lessons with ex-NBA player turned conservative minister Ralph Drollinger, who advises some of the Trump administration's top leaders, including Education Secretary Betsy DeVos, Health and Human Services Secretary Tom Price, Energy Secretary Rick Perry, CIA Director Mike Pompeo and Agriculture Secretary Sunny Perdue, to name a few. Trump always gets a summary of the teachings from Drollinger.

Like Jeffress, Drollinger is also known for intolerant rants against gays, Muslims, Catholics, climate change and more.

Right-wing pastor Robert Jeffress says it's cool with God if Trump attacks North Korea. FLICKR

Trump compared to Hitler by the Anne Frank Center

The nonprofit organization tweeted out a list of characteristics shared by the Trump administration and Nazi Germany.

MICHAEL MARTIN
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

The human-rights organization the Anne Frank Center sharply criticized President Trump Wednesday, suggesting there were parallels between the Trump administration and Nazi Germany.

"Alarming parallels of history escalate," the organization stated in a tweet, which included a bulleted list implying commonalities between Trump and Hitler's regime.

Some items on the list included "The president creates his own media," "He exploits youth at a rally," "He demonizes people who believe, look or love differently," and "He believes Congress should change its rules to give him more power."

"The Anne Frank Center believes Never Again to any people, and now," it concluded.

Steven Goldstein, executive director of the Anne Frank Center, told Newsweek that the tweet did not directly equate Trump to Hitler. Doing so would "trivialize the Holocaust," he said.

But he said that the tweet's message was intentional. "By the same token, it is responsible, and indeed our moral imperative, to point out parallels between actions taken by the Trump administration today and the actions taken by Germany in the 1930s before the Holocaust," continued Goldstein. "1930s Germany imposed a series of escalating steps of oppression, including demonization, discrimination and isolation of vulnerable communities, that evoke what we are seeing today. That comparison is just, and not to make the comparison would be a dereliction of our duty to ensure 'never again' to any people."

It is not the first time Trump has been compared to Hitler. Several critics noted on Twitter that Trump's fiery political speech at the Boy Scouts' National Jamboree in July was reminiscent of a Hitler Youth rally. Last year, Mexican President Enrique Peña Nieto called Trump's rhetoric "strident" and likened it to that of Hitler and Mussolini.

The Center has been a vocal critic of the Trump administration in the past. Its representatives called for the firing of former press secretary Sean Spicer after he said, when discussing the Syrian government's use of chemical weapons, that Hitler did not use chemical weapons on his own people.

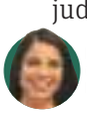
McCain's brain tumor might have affected his healthcare vote: Republican senator

Sen. John McCain went against his party and voted not to repeal Obamacare. A fellow GOP senator thinks McCain's health affected his judgment.



KIMBERLY M. AQUILINA
@KimESTAqui
kimberly.aquilina@metro.us

A Republican senator seems to think the vote to repeal Obamacare was defeated in part by the John McCain tumor effect.

Sen. Ron Johnson said on Tuesday perhaps McCain's health and recent brain tumor discovery adversely affected his vote on the Senate bill to repeal the current healthcare system.

On July 27, to a standing ovation from his colleagues, McCain returned to the Senate floor after surgery to remove a blood clot revealed a brain tumor. After a long day, at around 1:30 a.m., McCain joined Senate Democrats and voted no on the "skinny repeal" of the Affordable Care Act.

Republican maverick McCain previously stated in a radio interview that he supports the repeal, but only with an immediate replacement at the ready.

Johnson said on Tuesday McCain's brain tumor and the late hour could have affected the Arizona senator's judgment.

"We did get a call from Paul [Ryan] and he assured us that skinny repeal was not going to pass the House; it would have to go to conference," said the Wisconsin senator on AM560 "Chicago's Morning Answer."

"Again, I'm not gonna speak for John McCain — he has a brain tumor right now — that vote occurred at 1:30 in the morning, some of that might have factored in," he continued.

A radio host is heard asking "Really?" in a seemingly shocked tone.

"Again, I … don't know exactly what we really thought and again I don't want speak for any senator," Johnson responded.

"I really thought John was going to vote yes to send that to conference at 10:30 at night. By about 1, 1:30, he voted no. So, you have talk to John in terms of what was on his mind."

McCain spokeswoman Julie Tarallo released a statement: "It is bizarre and deeply unfortunate that Sen. Johnson would question the judgment of a colleague and friend. Sen. McCain has been very open and clear about the reasons for his vote."

McCain said at the time the defeated bill did not offer meaningful reform and that its defeat presents "an opportunity to start fresh" on legislation crafted by lawmakers in both parties.

"I encourage my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to trust each other, stop the political gamesmanship and put the healthcare needs of the American people first," McCain said.

Top congressional Democrats urged a bipartisan effort to fix problems in the Obamacare law without repealing it. "Change it, improve it, but don't just take a knife and try to destroy it and put nothing in its place," top Senate Democrat Chuck Schumer said.

Reuters contributed to this report.

Aubrey Plaza likes playing psychopaths

The "Ingrid Goes West" star says it's easier than being herself.

RACHAEL VAUGHAN CLEMMONS
@rachaelclemz
rachael.clemmons@metro.us

There's Aubrey Plaza at the Crosby Street Hotel, folded neatly into an armchair. Her legs are crossed nimbly underneath each other as she types away furiously on her phone. "Sorry," she says, mostly without looking up. "My sister is texting me." Her whole family is in New York City for the premiere of "Ingrid Goes West," out Friday, Aug. 11. It's a sort of a modern day "Single White Female," equal parts social-media satire and dark comedy. But we'll get to that later.

Oh, and before you ask, yes. Plaza is just as deadpan and sarcastic as you'd think, but there is a great deal of vulnerability and self-doubt bubbling just underneath the surface, too. For example, when I admit interviewing always makes me a bit nervous, she tells me, still deadpan, "It's OK. We're all going to die anyway." It's quite calming, actually.

She's no stranger to nerves, of course. She admits that although one-on-ones like ours are totally fine, big interviews with cameras, audience, the whole shebang, are often too much for her.

"I did ['The Tonight Show' with Jimmy Fallon] and I had a meltdown," she says. "I psyched myself out and then afterwards I felt so down. I just wanted to be myself and be comfortable and relaxed, but I was just a total spaz because I couldn't be comfortable in my own skin. so I ended up spazzing out and saying weird things."

GETTY IMAGES

She's pensive for a bit. "It's a never ending cycle of self-destruction. I think I'm getting better at it, but it's harder for me to be myself than it is to go be a psychopath on the astral plane on 'Legion.'"

She is, of course, talking about her breakout role on the FX original — a mind-bending take on some of the less mainstream characters in the Marvel universe — that more than proves Plaza is capable of taking on a great diversity of roles. She's more than just the April Ludgate of "Parks & Recreation" fame.

"You only have so much control over what you get offered and what is available for you to do," she says. "I'm so heavily associated with [my 'Parks & Recreation' character], which I'm fine with. I loved playing that character. But it definitely takes time to change people's minds."

"Ingrid Goes West" is Plaza's latest reminder to us all that she's a capable, malleable actress. In fact, she found the character of Ingrid — a lonely, grieving social media obsessive who takes some, um, extreme actions — so irresistible that she knew it was the part for her.

"I hadn't read a movie that was really a true character study," she says. "For me it just felt like, 'Oh my god, if I could play this part, I'd have so much screentime to explore and to really take the character on a real journey.' This [was] a real opportunity for me to show my range and to really dive into something complicated."

Still, for all the work she's done prying herself out of the April Ludgate box, Plaza is delightfully still herself — kind and warm and sarcastic. And awkward. As I leave the room, she extends her hand for me to shake, but it's upside down, inside out. "Sorry. I'm awkward." When I go to pet her arm instead — a weird habit, don't mind me — she looks up, still folded in the armchair, and smiles. "Oh, that feels nice. That's actually really nice."

Disney's break from Netflix means your movie selection is about to shrink

House of Mouse plans to launch its own streaming site in 2019.

GREGORY WAKEMAN
@MetroNewYork
letters@metro.us

In 2019, Disney's forthcoming streaming site will include titles such as Lucasfilm's "Star Wars 9" and Disney's live-action version of "The Lion King." DISNEY

Disney CEO Bob Iger confirmed on Tuesday that the company is starting its own streaming website, which will launch in 2019. That will bring an end to Disney's deal with Netflix, which began only in 2012.

Iger told CNBC that Disney had decided to exercise a clause in its contract with Netflix that will remove it from the streaming service.

Disney's own yet-to-be named streaming site will be the home of its 2019 theatrical releases, including Pixar's "Toy Story 4," Lucasfilm's "Star Wars 9," Disney's live-action version of "The Lion King," Marvel's "Captain Marvel" and beyond.

Iger has also promised that Disney will make "significant investment" to bring exclusive films and television series to the platform, while it will host various Disney movies and television shows aimed at kids.

Currently, Netflix is home to a plethora of Disney films, which include "Moana," "Rogue One: A Star Wars Story" and "Captain America: Civil War."

Tuesday's announcement failed to reveal whether or not these films will be taken down in the near future, or if the 2012 deal with Disney means that Netflix can stream them for several years to come.

However, despite Iger's claims that Disney still has a "good relationship" with Netflix, the studio will almost certainly be eager to make sure that all of its output is available on the same platform.

Which means that viewers, and their wallets, will be the ones to suffer. In order to gain access to these films from 2019, Disney, Marvel, Pixar and Lucasfilm fans are likely going to have to fork over extra cash.

Netflix's stock immediately dropped over 5 percent in the wake of this announcement, underscoring how much of a blow this is to the company.

Tuesday's confirmation that it has made its first acquisition in the shape of Millarworld and its variety of comic-book properties suggests Netflix is already looking to mitigate the loss of Disney.

Celebrate 30 years of 'Dirty Dancing' at this weekend getaway in the Catskills.

letters@metro.us

Patrick Swayze as Johnny Castle and Jennifer Grey as Baby in the iconic "Dirty Dancing." GETTY IMAGES

Wanna feel old? It's been 30 years since Patrick Swayze and Jennifer Grey first sashayed across our screens in "Dirty Dancing." Relive the '80s classic at a "Dirty Dancing" themed weekend in the Catskills from Aug. 11-13. Experience the small town '60s feel of the iconic film through screenings, cabaret and live music, plus all-inclusive packages at resorts and bed and breakfasts throughout Sullivan County. Here are our picks:

Where to stay

Nine River Road

Visitors can enjoy a room riverside on the Delaware at this small B&B in the foothills of the Catskills in the town of Callicoon. This weekend, Nine River Road is offering "The Lift" package — after Baby and Johnny's epic dance move — which includes two tickets to Callicoon Theater's matinee showing of "Dirty Dancing" on Saturday at 2 p.m. The package starts at $169 per night and also includes breakfast. To reserve a room, call 845-887-0042. nineriverroad.com

Villa Roma Resort

If you want to really live it up, opt for the aptly named "Time of Your Life" package, which gives visitors a more comprehensive (and pricey) weekend getaway. Enjoy two nights at the Callicoon resort with breakfast and dinner included. On Saturday afternoon, Jackie Horner, who consulted on the movie and is a former dancer herself, will give a talk about her time on the film's set. That night, there will be a live performance of songs from the film and an open bar cocktail party. Rates start at $956 for two people. The kids can come along too at a discounted price: children age 10 and below are $160 and children between 11 and 16 are $210. To reserve, call 845-887-4880. villaroma.com

Catskill Mountains Resort

Those looking for a more lowkey package should head to Catskill Mountains Resort in Barryville, right on the border of New York and Pennsylvania. Book their "Carry the Watermelon" package and receive a complimentary watermelon cocktail along with a room. Heads up though, because there's a two night minimum stay, starting at $438 a night. To reserve, call (845) 456-0195. catskillmountainsresort.com

Catch a screening of "Dirty Dancing" at the retro Callicoon Theatre. INSTAGRAM.COM/ SABRINASEES

What to do

Catch a screening of the film at Callicoon Theater on Saturday at 2 p.m. The aforementioned Jackie Horner will also give a talk after the film. Admission is only $3 for adults and $1.50 for children, the exact same prices as they were at the theater in 1987 when the film debuted.

On Saturday night, head out for some food, drinks and live music at Cabernet Frank's for "Night in the Borscht Belt," which includes a borscht-themed menu, '60s musical hits, cabaret and stand up comedy. $25 per person.

Looking for even more cabaret? Head to Forestburgh Playhouse for their late night "Time of My Life!" cabaret show, featuring music and dance inspired by those seen in the movie. The late night performance will be Aug. 11 and 12, with doors opening at 10:30 p.m. $17 minimum per person.

If the whole family's tagging along, check out Oscar Brown's Saturday night for a throwback family dinner (with dishes such as pot roast and green beans), lawn games like badminton and croquet and music from the Mickey Barnett Band, who played in the Catskills in the '60s. $35 per adult, $20 for children 12 and under. To reserve a table, call 845-747-4337.

"dOGUMENTA" is all about appreciating art from a dog's point of view. JASON FALCHOOK

Take a bite out of art

"dOGUMENTA" is the art show for dogs that just might change your life. EVA KIS

An art show for dogs is coming to Lower Manhattan — not by dogs, not about dogs, but meant to be enjoyed by dogs.

The first-ever "dOGUMENTA" brings 10 new works curated with the canine taste in mind to Brookfield Place from Aug. 11-13. Free and open to the public, the show features paintings and sculptures at doggie eye-level that use the blues and yellows dogs can more easily see; several pieces also have smelly, audio and other canine-friendly components.

"We spoke with artists and those that we chose were ones able first to see through or imagine a dog's perspective," says Jessica Dawson, curator of "dOGUMENTA" and a lifelong art critic for publications like the Wall Street Journal and Village Voice.

It also meant giving dogs a chance to participate in the art by doing what comes naturally.

"One of our artworks is a riff on Andy Warhol's Oxidation Paintings, which are colloquially known as the 'P— Paintings' because he was said to have urinated on the canvases," she says. "One of our artists, Paul Vinet, is creating a minimal sculptural object whose its surface is treated with pigment that when the dogs pee on it, the paint will change and create these beautiful patterns."

In fact, "We'd welcome any mark-making at any point because it's a sign of 'I'd love to buy it at action' and it's a way to communicate. It's almost like art criticism for dogs."

All this art enrichment for the canine kind is thanks to a rescue pup named Rocky that changed Dawson's life when she adopted him in 2013.

"I was actually feeling pretty overwhelmed by the press releases and the other voices in the art world, and frankly just that there was so much art to see," recalls Dawson.

She started taking him to galleries with her "like any of my friends," and noticed his enthusiasm. "Rocky went straight up to the work and engaged with it directly, kind of went with his gut.

"That sort of fearlessness in the face of art, he never thought of a barrier between life and art ,it was all one to him."

Taking a cue from him and ditching the history and critical din, Dawson rekindled her love of experiencing art.

It also led her to solve, even for just a little while, the modern problem haunting all of us.

If you go

dOGUMENTA
Aug. 11-13

Brookfield Place
Waterfront Plaza
230 Vesey St.
Free, artsbrookfield.com

"Rocky is in the moment," she explains. "In our modern life we are often on our phone or our thoughts are elsewhere, real joy can be found in interacting with whatever is in front of us."

The whole point of art is to "make us think just a little differently about who we are, how we feel, what the world is about. So when we, like our dogs, are present with the work, we give ourselves the chance to have that 'Aha!' moment, and that's a pathway to joy."

And it's not just a new species that Dawson hopes the show caters to.

"We're really seeing the show as an entry point for humans who may not be accustomed to seeking out contemporary art, so this is a way for a certain audience of bipeds to have their pup lead them to appreciate art in a new way."

A Cheetos-themed restaurant is coming to NYC

It's the stuff of your junk food dreams: An entire restaurant devoted to Cheetos is coming to Tribeca next week.

It's only temporary, though: The Spotted Cheetah will pop-up at 211 W. Broadway Tuesday August 15 to Thursday August 17.

What can you expect from a restaurant based entirely on chips?

The crunchy, cheesy snack food delight is getting the foodie treatment: Chester Cheetah has chosen The Food Network's Anne Burrell to curate the menu. On the Spotted Cheetah's website, the mascot "writes" that he selected "the most dangerously cheesy celebrity chef to help elevate my almost purrfect Cheetos recipes."

On the menu: The Flamin' Hot Limon Chicken Tacos. PROVIDED

Burrell's dishes, which range between $8 and $22, include "elevated" Cheetos-ified comfort-food staples.

The "Dangerously Cheesy Starters" include Cheetos Crusted Fried Pickles with Ranch and Purrfectly Fried Green Tomatoes, breaded with a White Cheddar Cheetos crust and paired with a corn and cherry tomato arugula salad (right, because when you're at the all-Cheetos resto, you're really concerned with getting in your greens).

Among the mains, you'll find the Flamin Hot and White Cheddar Mac and Cheetos, which tops a jalapeno mac with a chipotle ranch Cheetos crust, and a Cheetos Mix-ups Crusted Chicken Milanese, which breads its chicken filets with Cheetos Mix-ups variety and is also served with salad — with cheetos as the croutons. And our crunchy orange friends make their way into the desserts, too: for one, a Cheetos Sweetos Crusted Cheesecake, which adds a crispy layer to a goat cheese cheesecake topped with blueberry compote. Wowza?

We're equal parts giddy and wanting to gag. The novelty has already drawn in enough New Yorkers that the popup is waitlist only. You can join at thespottedcheetah.com. Good luck! We recommend packing some wet wipes to handle all that orange dust. Or just forget it; the apocalypse is coming and you deserve to lick every finger dry.

Nude Shakespeare in the park is back

After last year's naked production of "The Tempest," Torn Out Theater will stage an all-male "Hamlet."

EVA KIS
@thisiskis
eva.kis@metro.us

Jake Austin Robertson stars in the title role of "Hamlet." MARJOLAINE GALLET

Another nude Shakespeare play is coming to a New York City park and this time it's the men's turn to bare all in the name of art.

After staging a nude, all-female version of "The Tempest" last summer, Torn Out Theater is back with an all-male production of "Hamlet." The performance is free once again and takes place in the great outdoors, this time at the Prospect Park Music Pagoda on Aug. 10-13. All seating is on the lawn, so arrive early.

But what exactly does nudity, which is permitted in public for artistic purposes under New York City law, add to the story of a Danish prince trying to uncover the architects of his father's brutal murder?

As the play's summary explains, "Walking around naked in public might seem like an insane thing to do, even if you're the Prince of Denmark. But when your world is run by liars who tell you when to smile and what to wear, maybe insane is the only honest thing to be."

The production team also notes that discussions of the au naturel male form became one of most common reactions to "The Tempest." While some wondered why such empowerment should be limited to women, others "thanked us for 'sparing' the world the unpleasant sight of male bodies."

"In every corner of the world, it seemed, there were men who felt that their bodies were inherently unwanted," they write. "We knew what we had to do."

Just as with "The Tempest," the lack of clothes here serves a greater purpose. The production photos reveal that though Hamlet himself will be naked for the entire play, other cast members start out clothed and work their way toward nudity.

It makes sense with the theme of the play, which begins with each character shrouded in suspicion and secrets while Hamlet, always ranting and yelling and raw in his grief-stricken search for truth, tries to untangle what happened to his father.

Mainstream entertainment is also trending toward more equal opportunity nudity, as in "Game of Thrones" and the recent adaptation of "American Gods."

However, just as female bodies have to be disentangled from sexuality, so do male bodies from violence. Theatrical productions — even ones that end in tragedy — can certainly help with that.

Whether it's adding shades of modern political drama via a Donald Trump-inspired lead in "Julius Caesar" at Shakespeare in the Park or staging the same play "Mean Girls" style, it's been a dramatic summer for the Bard in NYC.

TNT just launched a new young Shakespeare series "Will" that mines Elizabethan-era drama to tell his rise from glove maker to the English-speaking world's greatest playwright.

That's really rather good for a chap who celebrated what would have been his 400th birthday last year.

NAI-NI CHEN DANCE

Battery Dance Festival

Lower Manhattan is about to get a little more magical as professional dancers come together to take part in the city's longest-running free dance festival along New York Harbor. The Battery Dance Festival, going strong for over three decades, takes place all along the waterfront with public performances choreographed by the likes of Michelle Dorrance, Paul Taylor and Elizabeth Streb, alongside emerging talents. The fest concludes Aug. 19 with a champagne reception at the Schimmel Center (free with RSVP). Aug. 13-18, various locations, Battery Park, free, batterydance.org

INTERACTIVE

"Confidential"

If you like the choose-your-own-adventure thrill of interactive theater and the competitive nature of escape-the-room games, you'll enjoy combining both in "Confidential." Each Thursday you're invited to dress in your James Bond finest to seduce and deduce your way through a maze of clues and intrigue to solve a mystery, with storylines changing weekly. Players start out with a complimentary drink and receive a dossier; winners receive $100 and a bottle of champagne. Very nice. Opens Aug. 10, Thursdays at 8 p.m., Delilah, 155 Rivington, free with RSVP, confidentialthegame.com

DRINKS

Total Gowanus Immersion

Brooklyn Based and Brooklyn Brewery continue their summer series of walking tours that invite New Yorkers to explore new neighborhoods and sample local beers at the same time with the Total Gowanus Immersion. Participants meet at Parklife first to pick up passes for beers from bars like Mission Dolores and Threes Brewing, which are also good for discounts to local shops. They can also include lunch at Dinosaur BBQ, Taqueria el Atoradero, the Roof at Whole Foods or Pig Beach. Aug. 12, noon-6 p.m., various locations, Brooklyn, $15-$25, brooklynbrewery.com

We all know that Madge doesn't age, but she still gets a birthday bash each year at Brooklyn Bowl, which hosts the pop icon's largest birthday tribute party in the world. Madonnathon features performances of the superstar's hits live all night with additional tunes from her vast catalog spun by DJ Chauncey D. Guests are encouraged to dress on theme, with a prize for Best Dressed, and can touch up there at the makeover booth. Aug. 12, 8 p.m., Brooklyn Bowl, 61 Wythe Ave., Brooklyn, $15-$18, brooklynbowl.com

Be a trash tourist

Cadillac Ranch
MIKENAN1, FLICKR

These unlikely tourist attractions were saved from the scrap heap.

Fodor's Travel

Creativity takes all forms. Some people write sonnets, decorate cakes or paint landscapes. Others follow a different path: They flatten beer cans and nail them on their homes, embed found objects in mazes of concrete walls, bury cars in fields, and build giant sculptures in the desert. Here are 11 places where a person's creativity took the form of turning trash into a one-of-a-kind tourist attraction.

Beer Can House

You may hear this Houston house before you see it, as even a slight breeze causes a loud tinkling sound from thousands of garlands made of cut beer cans hanging from the roof of this small home. In 1968, retired upholsterer John Milkovisch began placing metal, rocks, and other objects into concrete in his yard so he wouldn't have to mow grass any longer. That naturally led to him flattening an estimated 50,000 beer cans and nailing them to the exterior of his home, then stringing curtains of garlands. His wife, Mary, good-naturedly went along on the condition the inside of the room remained beer-can free. The couple has passed away and the home is now owned by the Orange Show Center for Visionary Art.

Philadelphia Magic Gardens

It's not your typical garden. Rather than vegetables, flowers, and herbs, Philadelphia's Magic Gardens has mazes and small rooms made of concrete walls embedded with objects like tiles, mirrors, bicycle parts, doll pieces, bottles, and broken pottery. Instead of walking on grass, visitors stroll down colorful tile-and-mosaic embedded lanes. It's all the work of artist Isaiah Zagar, who took over vacant lots near his run-down neighborhood and began constructing the concrete walls over a period of 14 years. It opened as Philadelphia Magic Gardens in 2008 and is now an event facility, museum, and gallery space.

House on the Rock

Imagine an Infinity Room that projects 218 feet from the house and soars 156 above the Wyoming Valley; the world's largest carousel; a 200-foot sea creature; and an entire life-size street that's a recreation of a 19th-century village. These oddities and much more make up the House on the Rock in Spring Green, Wisconsin. It all started in the 1940s when Alex Jordan began constructing a home on a 60-foot chimney of rock to house the varied items he obtained from his travels around the world. The house opened to the public in 1960. The result is a carnival-like (some say nightmarish) complex of odd-shaped rooms filled with objects.

Noah Purifoy Outdoor Desert Art Museum

Described as a "junk Dada electronic wasteland," the Outdoor Desert Art Museum in Joshua Tree, California, is a 10-acre attraction made up of more than 100 large-scale sculptures created of junked electronics like barrels, televisions, bicycles, and tires. Los Angeles artist Noah Purifoy moved to the desert in Joshua Tree and spent the last 15 years of his life creating the sculptures. The museum and a cultural center are now run by the Noah Purifoy Foundation.

Old Car City USA

This 40-acre junkyard in White, Georgia, filled with 4,400 classic cars has a special appeal to visitors from around the world, as well as photographers who bring models here for photo shoots among the rusted old ruins of decaying car carcasses. But there's more than just classic cars: Old Car City USA has a small indoor gallery filled with thousands of Styrofoam cups covered in ink. Owner Dean Lewis calls this his "Doodle Room." He started creating the cups after a doctor told him to give up smoking 38 years ago and estimates he has made more than 4,000 of them, including one he worked on for more than 14 hours.

Cadillac Ranch

You won't find cattle on this Amarillo, Texas, ranch, but what you will find is a collection of Cadillacs buried in the ground. These brightly painted cars are part of an art project created in 1974 by three artists who called themselves Ant Farm. In 1997, the installation was moved from a wheat field to a cow pasture, where it continues to draw visitors and inspire artists who have written songs about it and filmed TV shows and videos here.

Cano's Castle

In Antonito, Colorado, you'll find a castle in the air built out of cans, hubcaps, and other items saved from an eternity spent in the dump. Dominic "Cano" Espinoza constructed this three-story castle and while he doesn't live there, he points out the art room, laboratory, guest room, steam room, and Jesus' casita to visitors. He claims God built the castle using his hands while he was under the influence of Vitamin M, which he calls Mary Jane, a substance that is now legal in Colorado.

World's Biggest Ball of Twine

Forget that second biggest ball of twine Chevy Chase wanted to take his family to see in the movie "National Lampoon's Vacation." The biggest ball is in Cawker City, Kansas, where in 1953, Frank Stoeber placed the first bits of twine that would one day become the world's largest ball of twine, measuring 8 feet tall and 11 feet in diameter. Now, the town comes together each year for its annual Twine-A-Thon, where all are welcome to add their own contribution, taking pains to maintain its ball-like shape.

Salvation Mountain

Calling his artistic style the "splooch" method, the late Leonard Knight blobbed paint on objects. So much paint that in 1984, he began creating an entire mountain out of cement, cement-covered objects, and coats of splooched-on paint in Niland, California. Sadly, after it reached a height of about 50 feet, it collapsed. Undeterred, he created a second mountain using adobe mixed with straw. People donated gallons of paint to his mountain, which still stands despite once being threatened with removal for being toxic waste.

Cathedral of Junk

Luckily for his neighbors in Austin, Texas, the Cathedral of Junk is mostly hidden from the street in the residential neighborhood where this shrine to, well, junk, has taken over the backyard of Vince Hannemann, who constructed the "cathedral." While some may wonder why he saved these things that seem more suited for the dump, others are moved to tears by the site of items they remember from their childhood in the maze-like structures created of old lawn mower parts, bicycle parts, and anything else that outlived its usefulness. The Cathedral of Junk has even served as a wedding venue!

Are you ready for some football?

The New York Giants and Jets are set for the start of their preseason schedule.

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Football is back. Well, preseason football.

The New York Giants and Jets will take the field for competitive games for the first time since last winter.

That statement is music to the ears of New York fans everywhere.

For the Giants, a tweaked offense that offers some big-time playmakers along with a defense that can possibly be one of the best units in the league will bring Big Blue and their fans plenty of hope for the upcoming season.

The Giants brought in Brandon Marshall, formerly of the New York Jets, via free agency and selected tight end Evan Engram out of Ole Miss. Both pass catchers are expected to be dangerous targets within Eli Manning's offense next year.

On defense, not much has changed, which is probably a good thing. New York's defense came alive midway through the season and carried the team to the postseason.

With little changed, the defense has an opportunity to be at full strength for an entire season, which should be a dizzying thought for opposing offenses within the NFC East.

For the Jets, ready or not because here it comes.

Preseason will be the first opportunity to check out this year's edition of Gang Green, which is a fitting nickname considering this team is going to be putrid.

To put things simply, the Jets are lacking any sort of depth or star power.

The quarterback position is a mess as the starting job is coming down to either veteran Josh McCown — who has never maintained any sort of success during his time in the NFL — or Christian Hackenberg and Bryce Petty, both of whom are unproven at the professional level.

To make the passing game's chances look even more grim, expected No. 1 wide receiver Quincy Enunwa went down with a season-ending neck injury on Monday. That leaves the team with Robby Anderson as their top receiver while he's supported by Chad Hansen, ArDarius Stewart, Jalin Marshall, Charone Peake and Lucky Whitehead.

Those lower five receivers who will be competing for roster spots have combined for a whopping 42 career receptions (Hansen and Stewart are rookies).

For the supreme optimist wearing green and white, which I'm not really sure exists, the preseason provides an opportunity for the little-known underdog to emerge as a bona fide NFL star.

It's rare and given the Jets' track record, probably not going to happen to them. But hey, it's always nice to dream.

The New York Yankees and Boston Red Sox are approaching a critical series this weekend. The Sox could open up a very healthy lead in the AL East or the Yankees could close the gap as we near September. GETTY IMAGES

Is Red Sox series the Yankees' last stand for the division?

The three-game series at Yankee Stadium could determine if the Bombers are AL East contenders or not.

JOE PANTORNO
@JoePantorno
joseph.pantorno@metro.us

Once the calendar flips to August, most eyes around Major League Baseball start nervously darting back and forth from the field to the standings.

You see, only around eight weeks of the regular season remains and the playoff picture is beginning to get clearer and clearer with each passing day.

That is, at least in the divisional races.

It obviously makes this weekend's upcoming series between the Boston Red Sox and New York Yankees a massive one seeing as the Bronx Bombers are hanging on by a thread to their American League Eastern division title hopes.

Entering Wednesday night, the Red Sox held a four-game lead over the Yankees in the division, but New York has been the superior side in the rivalry so far this season.

Through nine games, the Yankees are 6-3 while winning four-of-six from the Red Sox at Fenway Park.

The last time these two met, they split a four-game series in Boston from July 14-16 in which the Red Sox came out of it with a 3.5-game lead in the division.

It was a little less than a month after the Yankees opened up a four-game lead of their own over Boston thanks to a red-hot start to the 2017 season in which they began 38-23.

But in the ensuing 50 games, the Yankees went 21-29 while the Red Sox reeled off 28 wins in that same stretch.

Aaron Judge has struggled at the plate since the All-Star break.

While he still leads the American League in home runs, he set a franchise record by striking out in 25-straight games.

This series at Yankee Stadium could be New York's last stand against Boston for the division.

Losing two-of-three, or worse, getting swept would all but end their hopes of taking the AL East for the first time since 2012, forcing the Yankees to settle for a spot in the wild-card game once October rolls around.

Aries Quickly take care of any responsibilities you are given and move on to pastimes that you find more enjoyable. Don't make changes that will affect your appearance.

Taurus Let your charm and innovative ideas lead to a better future. Indulge in events that will give you the opportunity to share your skills and promote your goals.

Gemini You'll be taken advantage of by someone asking for help. Pick your friends wisely and refuse to let temptation lead to indulgent, unhealthy behavior.

Cancer Your creative imagination will help you find a unique way to use your skills more effectively. Time spent with someone from a different background will spark interests.

Leo Get involved in projects or causes you find stimulating. If you let your imagination lead the way, you will come up with ideas that will put you in a leadership position.

Virgo A little charm will go a long way. Nurture a relationship that means a lot to you. Lending a helping hand will win you favors and bring you closer to someone special.

Libra Be open about your feelings and plans. It's important to find out who does and doesn't support you before you begin to make changes.

Scorpio Short trips, creative courses or self-improvement projects will all bring good results. Preparation will help build the confidence you need to show off what you have to offer.

Sagittarius Listen carefully. Someone will mislead you. Emotional manipulation will be costly. Stay focused on what you need to accomplish, not on what someone says.

Capricorn Don't limit what you can do because of an emotional incident. Spending on someone or something to impress others will not bring the returns you expect.

Aquarius Confusion will set in if you believe everything you hear. Do your own fact-finding to avoid wasting time. Your due diligence will result in financial gain.

Pisces Don't let the choices or last-minute changes someone makes limit you. Follow through with your plans, even if it means doing so alone. EUGENIA LAST
